Experience new flexibilities in online payments!

The problem: the current payment methods are built on old-fashioned logic that total payment should happen right after a purchase, on the same device, in the same browser, and all by the same person who initiated the purchase. There's no such thing as splitting the bill online.

But, in real life, we often need to split the bill, whether it's ordering loads of pizzas for a party, booking flights, or buying festival tickets.

The solution: Payment Courier, which lets consumers simply create and share a secure Payment Courier link so each recipient can easily pay their share, while being confident that everyone's card data is kept totally secure.

Why is it great for consumers?

Using Payment Courier gives an upgraded shopping experience, not to mention all the wonderful possibilities of splitting expenses to make shopping online together so much easier.

Why is it great for merchants?

Payment Courier is compatible with multiple payment gateways and it can be easily integrated into the current payment structure so there's no need for any extra in-house development. Since it's a new way to handle online payments, it allows merchants to provide their consumers with a unique shopping experience which helps differentiate their business.
